Hi Lisa,

You are receiving this message because you are listed as a Site Admin for your group's Choir Genius site.

This message is to let you know that Wednesday night, after 5pm PST minor updates will be rolled out to fix the following reported issues:

- NEW Spam protection module for public sites: The old spam protection module we used to use for comments on public sites has been discontinued by the creator. We're now integrating with google re-captcha. This module will be rolling out in the update. A separate notice with instructions on how to set up this module will be sent after the roll out has occurred. Look for it on Thursday afternoon/Friday.
- NEW Checker assignment page: The page will appear in the "music admin" menu and is available so site admins can control which people are assigned to specific checkers for their music learning records to be reviewed. If left on "automatic" assignment, the record will follow a round robin assignment pattern within the same voice part as the record. If a user is assigned to a specific check, then all of their music learning records will be assigned to that person. More info here.
- Music library page: an action has been added to allow you to edit the learn by date from the list view of music.
- Music learning records will no longer redirect to the the recording assessment page after updating - it will reload on the same music learning record.
- Checkers can notify users when a music learning record is updated using the checkbox when saving their change (works with the new advisor module enabled)
- Candidates will have access to the Members Only Blogs. They will only be notified of the one's their selected for by their role, but they can read all of them on the main Members Only Blog page.
- Member ID is greyed out when a user cannot edit it (members).

- Poll votes should no longer cause an issue when trying to delete users.
- 3gp added as an allowed file type for audio uploads (not supported in all browsers for the player, though).
- Event RSVP emails now have a settable date format - defaults to the "short" format. You can change the format on the "attendance settings" page. (Settings & admin > feature settings > attendance settings).
- Delete and save buttons reversed to follow standard format on auto messages edit page.
- Members page: actions button now includes option to unblock a set of users.

Thank you for your patience as we worked on these items. We appreciate your feedback and continued support - we still have a list of feature request items and issues that you've brought to our attention, so if you don't see your item here, please know we haven't forgotten about you. The next big project that Development is working on is a re-vamp of the events system.

While working on these product updates, we've also been working on our new support site, which will feature a visible and interactive list of the items we're working on, so you can see what's active, and let us know which items are most important to you. This site will also feature "user manual" style articles based on general areas of the product, rather than individual topics. We'll let you know when this new support site is up and running.

There is no expected downtime for this update. Additionally, we now roll out updates based on your general location (Australia, Europe, North America, etc). This means that when these changes appear on your site will vary - for some of you, you will see changes on Thursday, but others will see changes on Friday.

Cheers,
Sharlene
